Century Hosts Original Theatre Performance Housed and Homeless (From the Very Same Cup) Nov. 19

On Thursday, Nov. 19, Century College will be the site of an original theatre production by zAmya Theater Project, a program of St. Stephen's Human Services. The performance explores the psychological and social similarities between the housed and homeless communities as examined through true stories and experiences of those affected by homelessness.

Called Housed and Homeless (From the Very Same Cup), the event is sponsored by COLLAGE, an East Metro Collaborative Raising Social Awareness and Inspiring Action. Members of COLLAGE include East Metro Women's Council, White Bear Center for the Arts and Century College.

The performance begins at 7 p.m. in the Century West Campus Theatre, 3300 Century Ave. N., White Bear Lake, and admission is free. A panel discussion after the performance features panelists Trisha Cummins Kauffman, Executive Director East Metro Women's Council; Tina O'Malley Bayonet,

Washington County Housing Coordinator; Faye Sharpe, Former EMWC resident, Century College student and EMWC Board Member, and Deborah Mitchell, Supervisor Wilder ROOF project.

The script for the production grew out of a series of workshops about homelessness that were attended by a variety of individuals with an interest in the issue.
